

Code Life

About

This is currently a personal website of Todd Birtcher and his life related to coding, freelance work, and business development.

I spent many years employed as a software developer for different companies, sometimes exclusively dedicated to what the employer was leading or assigning to me. That changed a lot over the years. It has been challenging and fun to learn different programming languages and paradigms up into the present.

I have experience in making custom software in .NET C#, SQL Server, SSRS since 2002, but for the last few years, have been much more interested in general web design, Linux, and Python.

You may follow Code Life on Facebook at
<https://www.facebook.com/codelifesoftware/>

My personal YouTube channel is <https://www.youtube.com/@toddbirtcher>

This website is new, and it will improve in visual appeal but wanted to get the basic information on here as soon as possible.

© 2025 Code Life